426 UPDATE

Unfortunately we've experienced a setback with our building. Testing of the first floor concrete slab has revealed that there is substantial weaknesses. This has meant that work has been suspended for the last week and more extensive testing carried out. The project mangers and engineers suggest that the solution will be steel supports under the first floor slab. At a minimum this is likely cost $500,000 and mean a delay of 2-3 months. We should have more detailed information by this time next week.
