4 Ways to Leave a Spiritual Legacy

Start with yourself – The best way to prove to your children the value and relevance of faith in Christ is to be a living demonstration of that truth. If we compartmentalize our faith or allow our priorities to get out of whack, they'll "learn" that Christ really isn't all that important. But if we make Christ central in our lives, if we diligently foster our relationship with Him and imbed God's Word in our hearts, they'll learn that life is all about Jesus

Give them God's Word – In a recent survey conducted by Barna, 24% of Millennials (adults 18-29), said they were "skeptical" of the Bible. Almost a quarter of America's young adults believe the Bible is just a book written by men full of stories and advice. We can stop this growing trend by teaching our children to know and love God's Word. We must be purposeful. We cannot leave it solely to the church. Make a plan – have family devotions, read Bible stories at bedtime, play worship music that comes straight from Scripture, develop a family Scripture memory program. Instill God's truth in their hearts any way you can! And "as you walk along the road," shine God's Word on all the daily circumstances of their lives.

Tell Your Family's Stories – Share the stories that tell of God's miraculous activity around you and of His faithfulness to you and your family. Weave them into the fabric of your family history. Don't let yourself or your children forget!

Stand Firm in Shaky Times -Trials not only work our faith, they can also prove our faith works. If you make the truth of God's Word the bedrock for your life, when difficulty comes you will stand firm. An unshakeable faith in shaky times is the most effective testimony you can give your children.

Parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, teachers, friends, you will impact the next generation. What kind of legacy will you leave?

Self-Denial Appeal 2021

The Self Denial Appeal started in 1886 when General William Booth called Salvationists to give sacrificially, to deny themselves so that they could offer God's love to a hurting world.

This year's Self Denial series [filmed before the COVID-19 pandemic swept across the world] shows how Salvation Army corps and programs are transforming lives and communities.

A video team travelled from South America to Asia, Europe to Africa to gather four stories – a children's ministry program in the favelas of Brazil; a 'self-help' group initiative in India that teaches business skills to women; a corps program in the Ukraine that is transforming the future of young people through caring support and teaching life skills; and we revisit a project in South Africa [from the 2019 appeal] where clean water has changed the lives of thousands of people.

You can give financially to the Self-Denial Appeal on March 28

Alpha is coming !!

Alpha is a series of talks and discussion that allow people to explore the basics of the Christian faith with others. This year there will be alpha groups both online and in person.

Online—Monday nights (commencing March 1)
